-Honoxone, August 20rn, 1870. THERE can be very little question as to the soundness of the views enunciated by Chief-Justice Small at the Meeting of the Legislative Council on Thursday, with respect to with its usefulness; and it really appears the organisation or rather the disorganisation; that there have been undercurrents of one District Watchman, and when taken had of the Police Force. If there is any Service in which it is necessary to maintain discipline, Authorities having so long held back from that Service is the Police. If there is any one setting on foot this simple and most efficathing essential towards maintaining discipline cious remedy. This step, combined with anywhere, it is that there should be one Chief Justice Smare's suggestion of placompetent Head. Its action will become so much shack led, that opportunities will be afforded for the escape-of-oriminals .- It will lack that promptitude and regularity, which are the most important element of its strength. Above all it will lose that moral influence upon the criminal classes, which forms one of the most important and efficacious means of preventing the occurrence of crime. //This and can unly be obtained by the whole Force being concentrated under one efficient Head. SUPREME COURT CHIMINAL SESSIONS.

COW BTEALING So Afong and Low Ayok plended not guilty to an information charging them with feluni-Alin, at Poktolum, on the 20th of July, 1870. The facts of this man may be shortly stated thirty three in number, towards Pokfolum. As I the cown were grazing the boys saw two etrangers taking away one of the cows, one dragging er by a rope round her horne and the other behind. The boys shouted, and three of them ran after the two men; who min off towards Pokfolum Police station. A constable camo int, but when he arrived he saw no cow, but the two prisoners running away from three boys, who were shouting after them. The coustable rrested the two men in question.

The evidence of the boys, however, tended to clear the first prisoner, who was behind the cow, and might have had nothing to do with it, One of the witnesses boldly expressed his opinion that the first prisoner did not steal the cow, but was simply walking behind slowly. The Indian constable, on the other hand, saw both men running from the boys. A difficulty arose as to the direction taken by the prisoners before they were arrested. The interpreting

His Lordship added that the constable must have had all his eyes open at the time, though this fact was not in evidence, and must have been inferred from the appearance of the wit ness in Court.

Both prisoners were convicted, the second by unanimous verdict, and the first by a majority of one (4 to 3). . The Court sentenced the second prisoner to wo years, and the first to three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

COTHTER PRIT COIN. Tan: Achang and Koo Aning were arraigned on two counts, first for uttering one, and second for uttering six, counterfeit coins. On the 2nd August it appeared, the prisoners companied by another man, came into tobacco shop in Queen's road and asked for box of cigars. The price asked, was $6, and ifter a little bargaining the mon went out without the cigars Shortly afterwards, how ever, the first prisoner returned alone, asked for a bundle of cheroots. laid down a dollar in paynent, and received change. Lee Along, the knowing shop-man, put the dollar into a drawer which contained no other coin, and after the prisoner's departure, examined and found had. The first prisoner, however, returned, and anid he had reconciled himself to the price of the box and wanted it for $6. Abing was now wide awake, and suggested sending the dollars to a money changer's shop close at hand for examination. Prisoner said be would go too. They went, and the coins were laid lown at the changer's counter, from which the first prisoner instantly swept them up, and gave them to the second prisoner, who was abiquitous and who immediately made good his racape, carrying the coins with him. In cathering the dollars up from the counter, the first prisoner had suggested going to shother changer a shop He was taken to the Police station. On way thither he was observed to fumble with his shoe, and the constable's suspicions were immediately aroused. Having lodged his charge at the station, this constable returned, and found at thespot where the suspicious signs occurred, a dollar, which was afterwards shown to be bad This dollar was not included in the information but mention was made of it as corroborative evidence with regard to those which the prisoners were charged with attering. His Lordship then summed up, addressing the jury as follows :- Gentlemen, of the jury. you will remember that the two prisoner are charged by the Attorney General that they did unlawfully utter a fulse coin intended to been at Pokin not at Tientsin, because the Johnson, P.C. No. 206, with obstracting the resemble Her Mujesty's current coin. You. will remember that that is the coin produced and marked A. They are also charged with uttering six false coins. Now, gentlemen, or the outset of this case I think it better for m to simplify it by saying that the uttering of the six coins, although it is of vast importance as affecting the guilt of the prisoners with regard to the one coin, is not so proved as to substantiate the fact of their being bad silver. The reflected light of this transaction is of vest importance. I am particularly anxious that you should deaw that distinction; because I dence to show that they uttered the six coins.

You cannot tell whether they were good or bad. The conduct of the parties with reference the one which is notnally proved to the six coins, however, reflects back on the transaction which took place with regard to bad. Now, gentlemen, there is a distinction in law which I must point out to you. All the evidence as to the more act done, goes against the first prisoner. It was his hand which passed the one dollar,-and if you believe the witnesses, there will be little doubt in your minds that he passed that dollar-and you will see that it was a false one. Well, you or might honestly and innocently pass a false follar; but it is that he unlawfully did it that he knew he was doing wropg. And to prove that, you must look at the surrounding circumstances. With regard to the first prisoner, all that took place as to the six dollars becomes important as throwing a character and colour on the transaction when he passed the dollar which is marked A. Under those circometances, when the evidence has been road, shall leave the case as to this, man to your consideration. Now we come to the case of the second prisoner. He mys he did none of these things. But he is guilty of uttering if heaided, or abetted, or counselled, or induced the first prisoner to nater, or took part in the uttering of these cours. Did , the second prisoner nid the first? If he did he is of attering. And so on did he abet, course Ac. That would be an inference, because it is one of those things which you cannot prove. You prove facts, and as reasonable men draw a regionable deduction. His ship then read the ovidence us the Hollywood Road. PUNTLAND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinasa Dictionany, by the Rev. W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

MOR scope and practical service this Work the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-graphy displays the success of an attempt to the make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those heretofore characterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is no great, and its York. utilitarian purposes so mplete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chi nese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it oxplains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in Thing it cannot but be invaluable occusionally. It comprises upwards of two thousand large marto pagea.
